Hunting Season Opens

Many Attend Daughters of G. A. R. Meeting

The Daughters of the G. A. R. held an open meeting Monday evening, Nov. 13th, to which were invited the honorary members, the teachers of our public schools and the husbands of our Fortrose. Despite the inclemency of the weather nearly everybody was there and a very enjoyable evening was spent.

The muster service of the order, always beautiful and impressive, was conducted, and two new recruits were mustered into service.

Following the program of the Fortrose we were favored with a short program of music and reading from guests and outside friends of the order. Miss Mabel Van Deusen rendered two piano solos in her usual happy manner.

It seemed to those who listened that the quartette never sang with more expression nor with a deeper appreciation of the power of music to sway the souls of men.

Miss Olson of the teaching staff of the high school chose a most fitting and appropriate subject for an interpretative reading in "The Perfect Tribute," by Andrews. It is indeed a perfect tribute to Abraham Lincoln and was perfectly rendered.

The Daughters of the G. A. R. cordially appreciate the willingness of these young people to "do their bit" to add to the enjoyment of the evening. We who are older salute you in recognition of willing service rendered.

At the close of the program the refreshment committee took charge and a veritable banquet was served. More than seventy-five people sat down to tables loaded with roast chicken with dressing, baked potatoes, cranberry sauce, etc. One table, especially decorated with red and white carnations and proudly bearing a huge cake trimmed with tiny flags, was reserved for the honorary members, the boys in blue, and their wives and widows. Every possible honor was shown these boys, now older grown. As we saw them gathered about that table we recalled the words of our song, "The young heads are bowed and hoary G. A. R. G. A. R."

Yet they're crowned with deathless glory, G. A. R. G. A. R.

And your name shall ever dwell in the hearts that love you well, And your story we shall tell, G. A. R. G. A. R."

At a late hour the company dispersed, bearing away, we trust, a new conception of the principles to which the Fortrose is dedicated and the work they seek to do.

SMITH-WILOOX CASE SET FOR DEC. 2

The automobile accident case in which Harry Smith and L. P. Wilcox, both of Channah Lake, are involved, was continued from last Saturday until Dec. 2. The case is the result of an auto accident which happened the latter part of August in which the Wilcox machine was damaged to the extent of $300, it is claimed. The case was dismissed several weeks ago in Justice James court for insufficient evidence.

UNCLAIMED MAIL AT THE ANTIOCH POSTOFFICE

Claim Neglect in Issuing of Hunting Licenses

Some of those who are issuing hunting licenses in certain parts of Lake County are due for a felt, according to Deputy Game Warden Henry Kern, who is conducting an investigation. He has discovered that some of those who are issuing the licenses are neglecting to use the care they should in determining whether or not the applicants are entitled to receive the licenses.

In some cases that have been discovered by Mr. Kern, hunting licenses have been issued to men who are not even citizens of the United States, which is against the Illinois game laws.

In some instances he has discovered that the person issuing the licenses does not even put the applicant under oath.

Whether or not this alleged carelessness has been responsible for the increased number of arrests by game wardens is not known, but the fact remains that there have been more violations detected this season than for some time. The investigation by Mr. Kern may have the desired result.

AUCTION SALES

There will be an auction sale Wednesday, Nov. 29, on the farm known as the Joseph Turner farm. The Cooper Bros. will sell their entire stock of farm implements and some 41 head of livestock. The sale will start at 10 o'clock sharp and there will be lunch served. L. H. Freeman will be the auctioneer and J. E. Brook the clerk.

HAYDEN IS AWARDED $4,000 DAMAGES

At Kenosha last Thursday a jury in the circuit court awarded John Hayden $4,000 damages in his suit against the Caroy Electric & Power Co. of Wilmett for injury sustained from a live wire belonging to the company's lines on July 7, 1921, while working in a hotel at Camp Lake. It is said that the defendant company may appeal the case to the supreme court.

Among the witnesses in attendance at the trial from here were Reinhold Flecker, Dr. F. F. Nowell, Mrs. A. Langley, Miss Marguerite Keefe and Miss Hazel Gaede.

RECEIVE $202.00 FOR ARMISTICE CELEBRATION

At a meeting of the finance committee for the Armistice Day celebration it was announced that a total of $202 was subscribed for the expenses of the day. The total expense of the celebration was given as $181.26, leaving a balance of $20.74. This fund will be disposed of at a meeting of the general committee of celebration. It was recommended by the members in charge of the finance to donate the flags purchased for the occasion to the D. A. R., as they would probably receive the best care and preservation from that organization.

NELS PULLEN RESIGNS; W. J. CHINN CARRIES MAIL

After many years of carrying mail to and from the depot Nels Pullen has resigned. Walter J. Chinn was selected to handle the position, and started the early part of last week. The horse and rig that for so many years was a fixture in the mail and express service, has passed on, for the future trucking will be done by automobile.

The announcement of the appointment of T. J. Stahl as under sheriff has been made by Sheriff-to-be Ahlstrom. Mr. Stahl's appointment is a popular one and with his thorough acquaintance with Lake county should be of great help to the new sheriff. The list of deputies and court officials has not yet been announced, but it is expected that Mr. Ahlstrom's brother will receive the appointment as chief bailiff.

BICYCLE CAMPAIGN CLOSES SATURDAY

The Free Bicycle offer extended to the youth of Antioch and neighboring villages for the securing of subscriptions will come to a close on Saturday, Nov. 25th. Many took advantage of the bicycle offer as well as the wrist watch offer, and as a result many new names appear on The Antioch News mailing list. There is, however, few who have not turned in their lists and it is expected the last few days of the campaign will bring the remainder.

Raise Milk Price 20c for December—Shortage Cause

The Milk Board of the Milk Producers' association, in session with the buyers of the Chicago district, were successful in obtaining a 20c increase in the price of milk for December. This increase was received, despite the fact that the price for December had already been set at $1.90 at the September session, due to the shortage of fluid milk in this section. The shortage evidently is due to the increased demand for butterfat milk and high prices being paid for that grade in the north, thereby causing the supply of fluid milk that has always come from that section.

There is also quite a shortage from what is known as the inner section of the fluid milk district brought about by the weeding out of the undesirable cattle and the high price of milk feed used for better production, the farmers falling back on their own feed and producing less milk.

The Milk Board in their session with the buyers asked for a 40c increase, but the buyers could not accede this request due to the activities of Mr. Poole.

It is hoped this condition will remain as it is and allow the farmers to receive more money for their milk which will undoubtedly come about if the demand becomes greater than the supply, despite the attempt to regulate prices by the dealers and Mr. Poole.

MANY ATTEND ROAD OPENING CELEBRATION

Many Beautifully Decorated Floats Are Entered in Parade

WOMEN SERVE SUPPER

Wednesday, Nov. 22, 1922, will go down in the history of Antioch as one of its most memorable days. With fully 2000 people in attendance to help celebrate the opening of the new road and with a day in the words of James G. Welch, "in which the heavens shine down on us," a gala day was enjoyed by all.

At 12:00 o'clock the visitors from all sections of the county started making their appearance, and from that time on Mr. Roeselein, of the Antioch Packing Co., with Frank Hoehn operating the barbecue, were kept very busy. There was a continuous line before the serving table for fully two hours, and Mr. Roeselein and the two butchers assisting him were kept busy cutting and slicing the huge joints of beef and pork that had been roasting all morning. This feature of the day was a grand success, many making a second trip to the serving table.

At just 2:15 the purple-costumed Elk's band of Waukegan made their appearance over the rise at the south end of town, led by the band of local improvements in a Jordan "Blue Boy," driven by the village president, Frank R. King. Following the band was a long line of school children from the grade school and the high school, and about 30 handsomely decorated cars with three or four comic productions in between.

On the arrival of the car containing the board of local improvements at the closed gate in the center of the village, the parade was halted while Mr. King stepped out of the car and with a short introduction from County Clerk Lew Hendee formally opened section 6A of Route 21 to the public.

The parade then continued its way through the arch toward the north end of town, and as the different floats passed through the arch they applauded according to their merits.

The car driven by Mrs. Herbert Vos under the name of the Antioch Woman's Club was undoubtedly the prettiest in the line, followed closely by the car driven by Miss Roeselein, also under the name of the Woman's Club. A Ford sedan driven by Mrs. Brogan, decorated in green and white and the Studebaker car driven by Mrs. William Ross, decorated with the national colors were well applauded.

The float presented by the Woodmen was quite a novel feature as was also the Ford Tractor with its descriptive driver and the float presented by A. W. Dock.

After the parade the band took its place in the bandstand and after a few selections that pleased the crowd, Lew Hendee, who acted as master of ceremonies, introduced the speakers.

The village president was the first speaker introduced to the audience, and in a few words thanked the audience for their coming, assuring them that the town was theirs for the day and wished them all a good time.

"Gene" Runyard was the next speaker introduced, and the eulogy he gave our village president and the board was very fitting and timely. Mr. King and other members of the board have done wonders for the village, and when the "big fellows" from the county seat had practically thrown up the sponge as far as getting the road through this year, and had informed Mr. King and Mr. Vos to this effect, these two members of the never-say-die board turned around and spring-led at their own expense and were so persistent in their arguments to the highway commission that this road should be put through, that they were finally assured that it would be done so, and making it possible for the "telegram with five words mentioned by Mr. Runyard in his speech. This whole road fight would make very interesting reading if it could be put in book form step by step taken by the board.

Mr. Russell, county superintendent was next introduced and gave us some

REGULAR SERVICES
Holy Communion, 8:00 a. m.
(Except 3d Sunday)
Church School, 9:45 a. m.
Morning Prayer, 11:00 a. m.
Holy Eucharist, 11:00 a. m.
(Third Sunday of Month)

Last Sunday the services were all held as usual, and the attendance at the Church School was especially good. At that time there was a short review of the customs of the Church, after which Mr. Brock told the story of St. Francis of Assisi. St. Francis lived in Italy in the eleventh century, and was the son of noble parents. He had everything that wealth and nobility could give him, and yet he was not satisfied. In reading the Gospels he was much impressed with the story of the young man who came to Our Lord, wishing to find out how to enter into the Kingdom of Heaven. After Our Lord questioned him as to whether he kept the commandments, he said that he must sell that he had and give it to the poor. St. Francis was so impressed with this story that he went out and did the same thing. His parents were angry with him because he had done this, but St. Francis became the founder of the great Order of Franciscans, whose primary rule was poverty. They owned nothing, but simply went from place to place preaching and teaching the Christian Religion. Their poverty was an aid to them. It loosened them from the fetters of wealth and gave them a free hand. Now that St. Francis had become one of God's poor, he believed that he could truly say with all of his poor companions: "Our Father, Who art in Heaven."

At Morning Prayer the music was played by Miss Dorothy Roesechlein, and the singing was especially good. In place of a sermon there was an address by Mr. George A. Mason of Highland Park. Mr. Mason is Zone Captain of the General Church Program in this zone of the Diocese of Chicago. He explained the plan that was adopted by the General Convention of the Church in Portland, Ore. The primary idea is to educate the people of the Episcopal Church concerning the great work that their Church is doing in this country and in foreign lands. A captain is to be appointed for each Parish or Mission, and then discussion groups of men and women to be organized. The subjects of discussion and study are the Domestic and Foreign Missions of the Church, and the work conducted in the Diocese of Chicago itself. The General Church Program consists of two parts, the Budget and the Priorities. The former refers to the financial program of each individual church, and of the whole Church. The latter refers to the work that the Church General wishes to give primary attention to during the next three years. It is planned that at the end of the discussion groups, there will be an every-member canvass to enlist the cooperation of every member in some work of the Church, and to secure subscriptions for local and General Church needs. We hope and pray that the blessings of God may rest upon this most important and necessary work of the Church. As the "Living Church" of Nov. 13, 1922, says: "Every parish in this country that is worth the powder required to blow it up, is working energetically at this time on the Church's Program."

Next Sunday is the Sunday next before Advent, and there will be a celebration of the Holy Communion at 8:00 in the morning by special arrangement. This was not known on Sunday last, and the Lay Reader is taking this means of announcing it. Church School and Morning Prayer as usual, and there will probably be a special speaker at the late service. No Priest-in-charge has been appointed as yet, but the priest who comes for the Eucharist next Sunday is simply a supply for that day.

NEW LEAFLET ON CLEAN MILK

A leaflet on clean milk, showing that milk of high quality may be easily produced by following a few simple rules, has been issued by the dairy division of the United States department of agriculture. To produce milk clean enough to meet all the requirements of city inspection is chiefly a matter of carelessness, and the methods are not difficult to understand or especially hard to carry out for anyone who has the inclination.

The leaflet consists of four pages: (1) Clean, healthy cows, (2) sterilization of milk utensils, (3) use of small-top milking pails, and (4) cool milk promptly. Each subject is illustrated, and references are given to bulletins which explain it further. "Keep milk clean, covered, cold," is the concluding advice.

WIDE SPREAD OF CORN BORER IN FOUR NEW ENGLAND STATES

Fourteen townships in the Merrimack Valley of New Hampshire were newly invaded this year by the European corn borer, which has been a destructive pest for the last five years along the Atlantic coast of the New England states. Reports of the field representatives of the bureau of entomology of the United States department of agriculture indicate that in Nashua, Hudson, Bedford, Concord, Merrimack, Manchester, Hooksett, Litchfield, Londonderry, Canterbury, Bosworth, Franklin, Bow and Hill are affected. The corn borer is also established in Massachusetts as far west as Lancaster, Clinton, Shrewsbury, and Worcester. Its new area extends into Maine as far up the coast as Saco, and through three townships of Rhode Island near Providence.

On Oct. 10 the commissioner of agriculture of Massachusetts, A. W. Gillett, conducted a party of state and federal legislators and entomologists over the most heavily infested area with the idea of securing additional funds for the purpose of combating the corn borer in these heavily infested weed and garden districts. At the present time available funds are insufficient to stop the further spread of this pest, which attacks truck crops as well as corn, and is even destroying the beautiful fall New England flowers, such as dahlias and asters.

SUNDAY SERVICES:
Sunday School, 9:45
Morning Service, 11:00
Epworth League, 7:00
Evening Service, 7:45

Now is the time to make your plans to attend revival meetings. The noted evangelist Joseph C. Ludgate has been engaged for revival beginning Sunday, Dec. 31, and continuing three weeks. Thousands of people have been converted in his meetings. Make your plans now to be in the meetings every night, and so far as possible every afternoon at 2:30. Four Sundays will be included, and he will preach great sermons each Sunday morning.

The coming Sunday, the morning subject will be "What Are You Afraid Of?" In the evening will be given the program which was announced two weeks earlier, but which was postponed on account of the heavy rain. Several excellent musical numbers will be followed by the story and song, "The House That Stood the Storm."

This song has awakened considerable enthusiasm in other places. The Sunday morning subject last Sunday was "The Great Discovery." The passion of men for exploration and discovery was traced through the centuries. Description of the wondrous experiences of men when they gazed on some new continent, or when their vision swept across some strange far-reaching sea, was vivid. When a new solar system swims into the astronomer's ken, when men first learned to sail through the air—what strange, new experiences!

But men began exploration and discovery in the realms of thought. What is everything made of? Where did all the stuff come from? How did it get made? What started everything moving? What keeps everything going? It finally dawned on them that a great, intelligent and all powerful Being was back of everything.

What marvels of new discoveries in communication of late. We speak through the air now thousands of miles. And some men of vast ambition are making plans to test out the possibility of communication with other planets!

But centuries ago, men formed a bolder project than communication with planets. They deliberately set out to try to get into communication with the Great Being who swings all the giant orbs in whooping flight through the trackless universe.

It occurred to them that the Being who made their minds must understand them, and would be able to understand any signals they might make to Him. They thought the most effective efforts would be the most intense activity of humble adoration of which they were capable. They set out on this trail and followed it. When the heart and mind were concentrated with all their force in reaching out to Him, there came the answering call of still, sweet love and power in the inner chambers of the soul. The Great Creator spoke in answer.

sweet to the taste of his children upon the earth. And those men of ancient days had made the greatest discovery of all the ages.

That truth has never been wholly lost. Millions have sought and followed it. Millions have succeeded in making each day an answer to the greatest of all discords. And it can be made only as at the last—by the intense concentration of mind and heart possible to each one. And so you who know how God speaks to the heart of a man until he knows how the heart of a man speaks to God.

The greatest problem of every life is to find God. And Christ said "God is eternal life." Seek God. Find Him—and find life.

Obituary

Mrs. Bridget Sheehan, an old settler and pioneer of Lake County, Ill., has answered the final summons. She died early on Wednesday morning, Oct. 25th, 1922, at the ripe old age of 83 years, five months and 10 days. She had outlived the allotted span by many years, yet she retained her faculties almost unimpaired to the last. To us, her children, she was the same dear loving mother she had always been.

She was the daughter of Daniel and Margaret (Welch) McCarthy and was born in the town of Feolanna, County of Limerick, Ireland, May 15th, 1834. She was the last surviving member of a family of ten children, one sister, Mrs. Margaret Slevin, having preceded her in death by just one year to the day, at the advanced age of ninety years. Two brothers and two sisters, who died early in life and her father, lie buried in Black Water cemetery in Ireland's soil. In the month of May in the year 1818, at the age of 14, she, with her widowed mother and two other sisters, took passage on a sailing vessel bound for America, a new and untried land. After five weeks of a rough and stormy voyage they landed in New York harbor, where they were met by her brother William, who had preceded them by one year to New York city. They traveled by stage to Albany and Hebron, N. Y., where they spent some time visiting relatives and thence by boat they made their way by way of the Great Lakes to Kenosha. They were met there by their uncle, James Welch, with a lumber wagon and ox team. He brought them to his farm near Millburn, the place she was over afterward to call home.

On November 4, 1855 she was married to Daniel Sheehan. To this union was born seven children, four boys and three girls, two boys died in early infancy and one daughter, Mrs. Goodsell Gall, Jan. 15, 1912. Those left to mourn are William and Eugene Sheehan of Lake Villa, Mrs. Lorey Fairman of Antioch and Mrs. Hutchins of Libertyville, twenty grand-children and nineteen great-grand-children.

Soon after her marriage her husband purchased her uncle's farm and it was here her children were born and grew to manhood and womanhood. It was here also her husband died Jan. 4, 1882, preceding her in death nearly forty-one years. This good woman came from sturdy old Irish stock and it was no uncommon thing for her to start out and walk a distance of seven miles to Mill Creek to church on Sunday morning, in those pioneer days when horses were scarce and ox teams were slow. She saw Lake County develop from the days of the log houses and ox team to its present stage of palatial homes and rapid transportation. She also saw the little frame church established at Mill Creek and the little cemetery laid out close by, where she has been laid to rest by the side of the loved one gone before. And, incidentally, the first person buried in this cemetery was her husband's uncle, John Sheehan, some seventy years ago. She loved to read, and her favorite books were the lives of the saints in separate volumes, and especially the life of the Blessed Virgin, a book she read through from cover to cover no less than four times, and from which she asked one of her daughters to read a certain chapter on the Sunday before she died. It is safe to say that one of her greatest sorrows in her declining years was the fact that failing health and the infirmities of old age made it impossible for her to attend mass. To this good old Christian mother, we, her children, owe the heritage of an abiding faith, our pleasures were her pleasures, our sorrows were her sorrows. We loved our mother and she loved us.

HER CHILDREN.

DAY OF THANKSGIVING
I ask that on that day, in our homes and in our places of religious worship, we humbly and reverently give thanks to Almighty God for the manifold blessings which have been vouchsafed us during the year now drawing to a close. I suggest, as a further fitting observance of the day, the general display of our beautiful National ensign, and the holding of patriotic community Thanksgiving exercises, to the end that the spirit of patriotism may enter into our devotions and the ideals of American principles of self-government be inculcated anew in the minds and hearts of our citizens and of those among us who will eventually seek American citizenship.

And, on this Thanksgiving Day, let us not be unmindful of distressed humanity in the Near East. There, as the result of age-old persecution, men and women and children are suffering and in dire want. Food, clothing, shelter, and medical supplies and attendance are urgently needed for their relief. The lives of thousands of fatherless and destitute children depend upon the help which must come largely from America. From the plenty with which we have been blessed, surely we can give a part to ameliorate the condition of these afflicted and sore beset people. America must lend in this humanitarian work, and Illinois will do its share.

In Witness Whereof, I have hereunto set my hand and caused the Great Seal of State to be affixed.

PROCLAMATION

Whereas, the season of the year has come when, in accordance with the custom handed down to us by the Pilgrim Forefathers, we pause in our busy lives to acknowledge humbly and with thankfulness the blessings we enjoy as a people, and as a Nation. The fourth year since the close of the Great War has marked a revival of business and industry throughout our land. We have safely passed through a period of readjustment which severely tried our political and economic structures, and the future holds for us bright promise of prosperity and peace. Our land has yielded a harvest sufficient for our needs, and to spare for others less fortunate. For all these Divine gifts we should be grateful, and it is fitting that we express in appropriate manner our gratitude to the Giver of all good; and,

Whereas, the President of the United States, by proclamation, has designated Thursday, November 30, as a day of Thanksgiving.

Now, Therefore, I, Len Small, Governor of Illinois do hereby appoint and set apart Thursday, the 30th day of November, to be observed by the people of Illinois as a

Thousands Have Kidney Trouble and Never Suspect It
 Applicants for Insurance Often Rejected.

Judging from reports from druggists who are constantly in direct touch with the public, there is one preparation that has been very successful in overcoming these conditions. The mild and healing influence of Dr. Kilmer's Swamp-Root is soon realized. It stands the highest for its remarkable record of success.
 An examining physician for one of the prominent Life Insurance Companies, in an interview on the subject, made the astonishing statement that one reason why so many applicants for insurance are rejected is because "kidney trouble" is so common to the American people, and the large majority of those whose applications are declined do not even suspect that they have the disease. Dr. Kilmer's Swamp-Root is on sale at all drug stores in bottles of two sizes, medium and large.
 However, if you wish first to test this great preparation send ten cents to Dr. Kilmer & Co., Binghamton, N. Y., for a sample bottle. When writing be sure and mention this paper.—Advertisement.

FREEDOM FROM LAXATIVES

Discovery by Scientists Has Replaced Them.

Pills and salts give temporary relief from constipation only at the expense of permanent injury, says an eminent medical authority.

Science has found a newer, better way—a means as simple as Nature itself.

In perfect health a natural lubricant keeps the food waste soft and moving. But when constipation exists this natural lubricant is not sufficient. Medical authorities have found that the gentle lubricating action of Nujol most closely resembles that of Nature's own lubricant. As Nujol is not a laxative it cannot gripe. It is in no sense a medicine. And like pure water it is harmless and pleasant.

Nujol is prescribed by physicians; used in leading hospitals. Get a bottle from your druggist today.—Advertisement.

ALLIES UNITED ON NEAR EAST

To Fix Turk Peace Conditions Behind Closed Doors at Lausanne.

SECRET DIPLOMACY TO RULE

Political, Territorial, Financial and Economic Future of Turkey Is Now Under Consideration in Switzerland City.

Lausanne, Nov. 21.—The big three of the Near East peace conference—Premier Poincare of France, Lord Curzon, British foreign secretary, and Premier Mussolini of Italy—have united upon a program. It was indicated at the opening of the conference.

Old-style diplomacy replaced the Wilsonian principle of "open covenants openly arrived at" for the making of the allied peace with Turkey. The Near East peace conference will be carried out in strictest secrecy on the demands of the allied delegations.

The press and public were admitted to the gaudy rooms of the Casino, where baccarat and roulette formerly were played, while President Haas of Switzerland welcomed the delegates with remarks about "peace on earth and good will to men."

Lord Curzon remarked during the course of his response that he hoped peace would be concluded in two or three weeks, saying that the British delegation came in a conciliatory spirit.

Ismet Pasha, chief of the Turkish Nationalist delegation, said the Turkish people wished peace but demanded full liberty and complete sovereignty such as other free governments possessed.

No other public meeting will be held until peace is signed.

Female Leader and Her Chinese Buccaneers Seize British Ship—Wounded in Battle.

Hongkong, Nov. 21.—Stories of a female pirate leader and her desperado band of Chinese buccanniers, who seized the British steamer Sul-Ah, overcame the ship's crew after a sanguinary battle, and then escaped with all the cash and valuables on board, were related by the passengers who were landed from the vessel.

Throughout the piratical adventure the woman leader is said to have calmly directed the movements of her band and was wounded together with three of the buccanniers when the passengers and crew engaged them in battle.

Chef Had Plenty But He Could Hardly Eat

Even an expert chef, for an up-to-date restaurant, with everything heart could wish in the eating line and the skill to prepare it in the most appetizing manner, finds life miserable and work a burden with his appetite gone and his health all broken up on account of stomach trouble.

According to his own statement, such had been the case for two years with William Lackey, 805 North Wells St., Chicago, Ill., chef at a popular North Clark St. restaurant, who says he recently found relief by taking Tanlac.

Mr. Lackey now boasts of a "wonderful appetite and a stomach that digests such things as ham and eggs, corned beef and cabbage, and rich pastries, foods that would have almost put me out of commission before I took Tanlac."

"Before I ran across this medicine," said he, "I was having to lay off from my work for a week at a time just on account of the numerous ills I suffered from indigestion. But when I tell you I have gained fifteen pounds, eat and digest anything, and am on the job every day feeling fine, you may know how I appreciate Tanlac."

Tanlac is sold by all good druggists.—Advertisement.

Oldtimer Deplores Fact That the Dainty Seems to Have Gone Out of Fashion.

When I was a boy I was very fond of succotash, and down in New England years ago we were told that it was made as the Indians made it, just pole beans and corn boiled together, and maybe it wasn't good!

In traveling around the country at various hotels I often ask for succotash especially at this season of the year when the beans and corn are just right, but what offerings are placed before me under the name of succotash!

In many parts of the country lima beans are used in making succotash, but I don't think the Indians "new anything about lima beans."

Succotash, Johnnycake, hoeecake, apple turnovers, frizzled beef, do you remember them?—From a Letter to the New York Herald.

Airing Her Secret.
 One evening I was to have a young man caller. As I didn't have a new dress and couldn't wear my old one, I finally succeeded in borrowing a sister's.

I was not ready and sitting in the parlor when he arrived. He at once remarked about my new dress. Everything went lovely until my little sister came in and said, "Oh, did Eve tell you you could wear her dress?"—Exchange.

SIGHS FOR REAL SUCCOTASH
 Woman Annoyed When Male Escort Got the Benefit and She Received the Abuse.

A woman had annoyed many people who were waiting in line for tickets on a Saturday afternoon at a railway station. The woman had come up at the other side of the window, and though she had been told to get in line, she had put down her money for two tickets and had obtained them at once.

"Just like a woman," muttered some of the men in line. But the woman turned to the man she had just joined and burst forth audibly:

"I don't think it's fair, Jim. You make me do that horrid trick of trying to beat the line because you say men never do such things. And women get the abuse. But I bet that every woman who does that has a man somewhere in the crowd who has insisted that she hurry."

Paper for Dark Room.
 Modern photographic plates are so sensitive that often a screen of red glass in the dark room is not sufficient to prevent fogging. A French photographic expert gives the following prescription for making a paper screen, which is 50 per cent more effective than red glass: Take unsized paper and dip it thoroughly in 100 cubic centimeters of water containing six grams of tartaric acid. Then pass it over blotting paper and dry it. To render the coloring matter more adherent, a little gum arabic may be added to the solution.

Counter-Attack.
 Little Tommy Boggs and the boy next door were having a row in the back yard. The neighbor had thrown a stone at Tommy, and the latter was making divers threats: "If you throw another stone at me," he finally yelled, "I'll set my dog on you."

"You will, will you?" retorted the neighbor. "Just you come into my yard and I'll slick my mother on you!"—Philadelphia Press.

If there were no timorous mortals to prey upon the pessimist would starve to death.

very joyful information. First that Wisconsin would make every effort to complete the cement road south to meet the Antioch road, through Salem and, second, that he had been informed by Mr. Egar, supervisor from Libertyville, that a right of way had been secured through the village, making possible a quick completion of Route 21 from Chicago to Antioch.

Mr. George Mason, exalted ruler of the Waukegan Elks followed Mr. Russell and the few words he spoke convinced the crowd that all Mr. Hendoo said about him being the "poppiest little man in Lake county" was putting it mildly. Mr. Scott of the highway commission, representing Gov. Small, gave a few remarks before the introduction of the speaker of the day, James G. Welch, former state's attorney. Mr. Welch certainly lived up to his reputation as the silver-tongued orator of Lake county.

The balance of the afternoon was spent in the Antioch Sales and Service Station, where a very complete program was given by the Elks band.

The supper supplied by the community for the benefit of the Firemen was a big success as was the mid-night supper served during the dance.

The dance at the Service Station was very well attended and with the added side attraction of a candy raffle, presided over by Otto Klass and the auctioneering of the phonograph and automobile tires by Walter Chilian in all made it enjoyable for all.

Harry Carey At the Crystal on Saturday

Harry Redding (Harry Carey), known on the frontier as "White Horse Harry," is the owner of a highly-prized water hole, the only drinking place between the mountain grazing lands and the Rio Grande. He is engaged to marry Nellie, a refined American girl who, through force of circumstances, is compelled to earn her living in a restaurant in the neighboring village.

Anon Price, an unscrupulous sheep owner, who virtually owns the town, wants both of Harry's possessions but as he refuses to sell his water rights and Nellie does not care for Price, the latter plans to obtain them. He sends Harry across the Mexican line to bring back some horses and falsely accuses him of trying to defraud the Mexican government with forged documents.

During the arrest, a Mexican rascal is drowned and Harry, although innocent, is sentenced to death. He escapes upon the eve of execution and hurries to the American town to settle scores with Price and finds that he has poisoned Nellie's mind against him.

His project of avenging himself is balked by Price, who incites the mob to lynch him on a trumped-up charge. Harry's jail is stormed by the crowd and he is saved from the shameful death by the arrival of a large force of Texas rangers, who are led by Canchita, a young Mexican girl, who is grateful to Harry for saving her and her father's lives.

Price's accomplice is arrested and Chalk-Eye, a desperado who is equally guilty, is also punished. Price flees and Harry, who means to place himself right before the law, pursues him and in a series of thrilling scenes, masters him and readjusts the scattered web and circumstances in which the arch schemer has enmeshed him. Misunderstandings are cleared away and Harry and Nellie, again united, are left in undisturbed possession of their rights and happiness.

Mrs. Linton Tells How Helpful
Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable
Compound is at This Period

Denver, Colorado.—"I have taken Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound seven years and I cannot tell you how good it has done for me. It is good for young and old and I always keep a bottle of it in the house, for I am at that time of life when it calls for Lydia E. Pinkham's help. My husband saw your ad. in the papers and said, 'You have taken everything you can think of, now I want you to take Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.' So I let him get it, and I soon felt better and he told me, 'I want you to take about six bottles.' So I did and I keep house and do all my own work and work out by the day and feel fine now. I tell every one about the Vegetable Compound, for so many of my friends thought I would not get well."—Mrs. R. J. Linton, 1350 West 83d Avenue, Denver, Colorado.

After reading letters like the above, and we are constantly publishing them, why should any woman hesitate to take Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound if she is in need of help? It brings relief where other medicines fail.

ERSKINE DALE—PIONEER

By John Fox, Jr.

Copyright by Charles Scribner's Sons

A striking figure the lad made riding into the old capital one afternoon just before the sun sank behind the western woods. Students no longer wandered through the campus of William and Mary college. Only an occasional maid in silk and lace tripped along the street in high-heeled shoes and clocked stockings, and no coach and four was in sight. The governor's palace, in its great yard amid lindes trees, was closed and deserted. My Lord Dunmore was long in sad flight, his coach with its six milk-white horses. But there was the bust of Sir Walter in front of Raleigh tavern, and there he drew up, before the steps where he was once high in taking Dane Grey's life. A negro servant came forward to care for his horse, but a coal-black young giant leaped around the corner and seized the bridle with a welcoming cry:

"Marse Erskine! But I knowed Firefly fast." It was Ephraim, the groom who had brought out Barbara's ponies, who had turned the horse over to him for the race at the fair.

"I come from de plantation for ole marse," the boy explained. "The host of de tavern heard and came down to give his welcome, for any Dule, no matter what his gurb, could always have the best in that tavern. More than that, a bewigged solicitor, learning his name, presented himself with the cheerful news that he had quite a little sum of money that had been added to his keeping by Colonel Dule for his nephew, Erskine. A strange deference seemed to be paid him by everybody, which was a grateful change from the suspicion he had left among his pioneer friends. The little tavern was thronged and the air charged with the spirit of war. Indeed, nothing else was talked. My Lord Dunmore had come to a sad and unexpected end. He had stayed after from the battlefield of Point Pleasant and had left stalwart General Lewis to fight Cornwallis and his braves alone. Later, My Lady Dunmore and her sprightly daughters took refuge on a man-of-war—whither my lord soon followed them. His fleet ravaged the banks of the rivers and committed every outrage. His marines set fire to Norfolk, which was in ashes when he weighed anchor and sailed away to more depredations. When he entrenched himself on Gwynn's Island, that same stalwart Lewis opened a heavy cannonade on fleet and island, and sent a holl through the lodgment noblemen's flagship. Next day he saw a force making for the island in boats, and my lord spread all sail; and so back to merry England, and to Virginia no more. Meanwhile, Mr. Washington had reached Boston and started his duties under the Cambridge elm. Several times during the talk Erskine had heard mentioned the name of Dane Grey. Young Grey had been with Dunmore and not with Lewis at Point Pleasant, and had been conspicuous at the palace through much of the succeeding turmoil—the hint being his devotion to one of the daughters, since he was now an unquestioned loyalist.

Next morning Erskine rode forth along a sandy road, amidst the sing-log of birds and through a forest of tlay upshooting leaves, for Red Oaks on the James. He had forsworn Colonel Dale to secrecy as to the note he had left behind giving his birthright to his little cousin, Barbara, and he knew the confidence would be kept inviolate. At the boat landing he latched his horse to the low-swinging branch of an oak and took the path through tangled rose bushes and undergrowth along the bank of the river, halting where it would give him forth on the great, broad, grassy way that led to the house among the oaks. There was the sundial that had marked every sunny hour since he had been away. For a moment he stood there, and when he stepped into the open he struck back hastily—a girl was coming through the opening of boxwood from the house—coming slowly, bare-headed, her hands clasped behind her, her eyes downward. His heart throbbled as he waited, throbbled the more when his ears caught even the soft tread of her little feet, and seemed to stop when she paused at the sundial, and as before searched the river with her eyes. And as before the river with her oarsmen came over the yellow flood, growing stronger as they neared. Soon the girl fluttered a handkerchief and from the single passenger in the stern came an answering flutter of white and a glad cry. At the head of the river the boat disappeared from Erskine's sight under the bank, and he watched the girl. How she had grown! Her slim figure had rounded and shot upward, and her white gown had dropped to her dainty ankles. Now her face was flushed and her eyes flashed with excitement—it was no mere kinsman in that boat, and the boy's heart began to throb again, throb fiercely and with racking emotions that he had never known before. A fiery looking youth sprang up the landing-steps, bowed gallantly over the girl's hand, and the two turned up the path, the girl rosy with smiles and the youth bending over her with a most protecting and tender air. It was Dane Grey, and the heart of the watcher turned mortal sick.

"Quite well." The woodsman drew himself up with quick breath-pulling without, flaming within—but before he could speak there was a quick step and an astonished cry within the hall and Harry sprang out.

"Erskine! Erskine!" he shouted, and he leaped down the steps with both hands outstretched. "You here! You—your old Indian—how did you get here?" He caught Erskine by both hands and then fell to shaking him by the shoulders. "Where's your horse?" And then he noticed the boy's pale and embarrassed face and his eyes shifting to Hugh, who stood, still cold, still courteous, and he checked some hot outburst at his lips.

"I'm glad you've come, and I'm glad you've come right now—where's your horse?"

"I left him hitched at the landing," Erskine had to answer, and Harry looked puzzled.

"The landing! Why, what—?" He wheeled and shouted to a darky: "Put Master Erskine's horse in the barn and feed him." And he led Erskine, with a to the same room where he had slept before, and poured out some water in a bowl.

"Take your time," he said, and he went back to the porch, Erskine could hear and see him through the lotticed blinds.

"Hugh," said the lad in a low, cold voice, "I am here, and if you don't like this you can take that path."

"You are right," was the answer; "but you wait until Uncle Harry gets home."

The matter was quite plain to Erskine within. The presence of Dane Grey made it plain, and as Erskine dipped both hands into the cold water did toward this dandy mincing up that beautiful broad path. With a little grunt he turned back along the path. Firefly whinnied to him and nipped at him with playful restlessness as though eager to be on his way to the arm across his saddle. Once he reached upward to pat the reins, and with another grunt strode back and went rapidly up the path. Grey and Barbara had disappeared, but a tall youth who sat behind one of the big pillars saw him coming and rose, bewildered, but not for long. Each recognized the other swiftly, and Hugh came with stiff courtesy forward. Erskine smiled: "You don't know me?" Hugh bowed.

"Quite well." The woodsman drew himself up with quick breath-pulling without, flaming within—but before he could speak there was a quick step and an astonished cry within the hall and Harry sprang out.

"Erskine! Erskine!" he shouted, and he leaped down the steps with both hands outstretched. "You here! You—your old Indian—how did you get here?" He caught Erskine by both hands and then fell to shaking him by the shoulders. "Where's your horse?" And then he noticed the boy's pale and embarrassed face and his eyes shifting to Hugh, who stood, still cold, still courteous, and he checked some hot outburst at his lips.

"I'm glad you've come, and I'm glad you've come right now—where's your horse?"

"I left him hitched at the landing," Erskine had to answer, and Harry looked puzzled.

"The landing! Why, what—?" He wheeled and shouted to a darky: "Put Master Erskine's horse in the barn and feed him." And he led Erskine, with a to the same room where he had slept before, and poured out some water in a bowl.

"Take your time," he said, and he went back to the porch, Erskine could hear and see him through the lotticed blinds.

"Hugh," said the lad in a low, cold voice, "I am here, and if you don't like this you can take that path."

"You are right," was the answer; "but you wait until Uncle Harry gets home."

The matter was quite plain to Erskine within. The presence of Dane Grey made it plain, and as Erskine dipped both hands into the cold water

"What!" shouted Harry. "You told both that you would fight with the whites against both! What'd they do to you?"

Erskine smiled. "Well, here I am. I jumped over the heads of the outer ring and ran. Firefly heard me calling him. I had left his halter loose. He broke away. I jumped on him, and you know nothing can catch Firefly."

"Didn't they shoot at you?"

"Of course." Again he paused.

"Well," said Harry impatiently, "that isn't the end."

"I went back to the camp. Crooked Lightning followed me and they tied me and were going to burn me at the stake."

"Good heavens!" breathed Barbara. "How'd you get away?"

"The Indian girl, Early Morn, slipped under the tent and cut me loose. The white woman got my gun, and Firefly—you know nothing can catch Firefly."

The silence was intense. Hugh looked dazed, Barbara was on the point of tears, Harry was triumphant, and Grey was painfully flushed.

"And you want to know what I am going to do now?" Erskine went on. "I'm going with Capt. George Rogers Clark—with what command are you, Mr. Grey?"

"That's a secret," he smiled coolly. "I'll let you know later," and Barbara, with an inward sigh of relief, rose quickly, but would not leave them behind.

"But the white woman?" questioned Harry. "Why doesn't she leave the Indians?"

"Early Morn—a half-breed—is her daughter," said Erskine simply. "Oh!" and Harry questioned no further.

"Early Morn was the best-looking Indian girl I ever saw," said Erskine, "and the bravest." For the first time Grey glanced at Barbara. "She saved my life," Erskine went on gravely, "and mine is hers whenever she needs it." Harry reached over and gripped his hand.

"As yet not one word had been said of Grey's misdoing, but Barbara's cool disdain made him ashamed and hot, and in her eyes was the sorrow of her injustice to Erskine. In the hallway she excused herself with a courtesy, Hugh went to the stables, Harry disappeared for a moment, and the two were left alone. With smoldering fire Erskine turned to Grey.

"It seems you have been amusing yourself with my kinspeople at my expense." Grey drew himself up in haughty silence. Erskine went on: "I have known some lads who were not cowards."

"You forget yourself."

"No—nor you."

"You remember a promise I made you once?"

"Twice," corrected Erskine. Grey's eyes flashed upward to the crossed rapier on the wall.

"What kind of a town is your neighboring hamlet of Snackover?" inquired a guest.

"Well, I'll tell you," returned the landlord of the tavern at Grudge: "It's the sort of a place where if a citizen shines up his shoes and puts on a clean collar he is suspected of intending to elope with some feller citizen's wife!"

How to keep feed money out of the mud

Extensive tests prove that hogs fed on concrete feeding floors gain 80% more weight than hogs to which the same amount of feed is thrown on the ground. Isn't it time to stop throwing feed money into the mud?

You can easily build a good feeding floor at low cost with Marquette Cement. Figuring 15 sq. ft. for each hog, 150 sq. ft. of 4-in. floor for 10 hogs can be laid with only 13 sacks of cement, 1 cu. yd. of sand and 1½ cu. yds. of stone.

A curb on three sides of the floor will keep the feed where the hog can get it. One sack of Marquette Cement will build 4½ feet of curb, 4 in. higher than the floor and extending one foot in the ground. The above quantities are based on a 1:2:8 mix.

Marquette Cement will assure satisfaction on all your concrete work. See your Marquette dealer for construction details on any job you may have in mind.

Owe Obligations
to CommonwealthBackbone of community service
Found in Support of Merchants to Residents

What do you owe your home town? Whatever the bill is, none will be presented to you for payment. The debt is an intangible one, no matter how large it is. If you do not realize the size of it, nobody will try to tell you. You know what the town has done for you, and you know better than anybody else what you ought to do for the town.

Two questions may serve to bring the issue home to you:

When your wife and children were critically ill, was it the doctor from the city who pulled them through?

You didn't even think of calling him. Your first thought was of the home town doctor, and he saved the lives of your dear ones.

Credit is Extended.

When you lost your job, who gave you credit and tided you over the winter?

It certainly wasn't the store in the city that advances "bargains" for the country shopper. The merchant on "Front Street" or "Main Street" stood by you then, as he has for others, and as he will again some time when the emergency arises.

If these things have not happened to you, they have happened to your neighbors, and you know about them. More money cannot pay for disinterested service such as the doctor and the merchant render under the circumstances. And they are not cited with the idea of wakening a feeling of obligation toward those individuals who render us signal service on extraordinary occasions. They are brought up, rather, with the view to making every man, woman and child realize his partnership in the community and his responsibility in that partnership which means so much to him.

The doctor and the merchant are not the only men toward whom others in the community owe this obligation to maintain the community as a self-sustaining entity. They are simply given as examples of how the proposition works out concretely. They are among the leaders who have consecrated what they are and what they possess to the service of the town in which they live, and all for the well-being of its people and their future as a community. On the basis of the law of compensation alone they ought to receive some form of pay for their effort, because even the Bible concedes that the worker is always worthy of his hire.

The cure effected by the doctor and the credit extended by the merchant are two specific instances of small towns. These are not all the benefits for the number is legion. In good times as well as hard times they come, because they are not restricted by the season of the year or limited to periods of necessity. Like "the gentle rain from heaven" about which Portia speaks so benignly in her famous courtroom speech to Shylock in "The Merchant of Venice," Shakespeare's masterpiece, these benefits fall upon "just" and "unjust" alike. Nobody is shut out from their enjoyment.

Happy and Content.

Happiness and contentment bring about also a rich social life. You get together with your neighbors in moments of relaxation from your day's toil and enjoy intercourse with them. Clubs and organizations unite you in bonds that hold you together for one purpose or another.

A score of other things might be mentioned, but space forbids. For instance, there is the library, with its rich storehouse of the best in the world's literature. Also, there are the material things that minister to the comfort and well-being of the people. Among them are paved or macadamized streets, concrete sidewalks, corner lights, police protection and a fire department; electric or some other system of lighting for the home, gas to make kitchen work easier, water, sewer and similar improvements and conveniences.

The stronger the community spirit the more of these there are. The taxes you pay settle the bills for the things already acquired; the weight of your cooperation with the progressive leaders assures others in the future. Be a home-town man all along the line—patronize home-town merchants exclusively.

WASHINGTON WOMEN INSTALL

MANY LABOR-SAVING DEVICES

A total of 463 home conveniences were purchased by members of testing circles recently conducted among rural women in the state of Washington, under the supervision of the extension workers of the United States department of agriculture. A testing circle is usually a group of about six women in a community who try out one article at a time in their homes, and then pass it on in exchange for another piece of desirable equipment. Testing circles were formed in rural communities all over the state.

As a result of trying out labor-saving devices in their homes, 105 women bought pressure cookers for canning and cooking, 96 bought fireless cookers, 75 bought dish drainers, 70 selected utility tables, 60 wanted steam cookers, 24 purchased gasoline irons, 20 installed bread mixers, and 13 obtained vacuum cleaners. It is interesting to note that the dish drainer apparently saved more actual time to each individual user than any other device except the pressure cooker, which is estimated, will save Washington housewives 32,445 hours of time annually. Moreover, a dish drainer saves energy as well as time, since the operation of wiping dishes is eliminated. This would not be true in the case of a cooking device, because the housewife would not necessarily have been active every minute while the food cooked. Each of the 75 women who bought a dish drainer expected to save 180 hours a year, or half an hour a day by its use.

FARM WOMEN STUDY

DYE FOR BASKET-MAKING

Rural women in some of the southern states who make baskets as a home industry, with the help of extension workers of the United States department of agriculture and the state agricultural colleges, are studying the harmonizing of colors and the utilization of homegrown or wild-dye material, such as walnut, pokeberry, sumac, and many others, to enable them to get uniform colors. Many of these farm women are producing beautiful baskets made of wild honeysuckle vines, coral berry runners, long-leaved pine needles, sweet grass, split oak and willow, using only materials which grow abundantly in their locality. Basketry work is taught in short courses in many of the agricultural colleges. It is carried on by farm women chiefly in Arkansas, Mississippi, Florida, Georgia and Alabama, with the encouragement and assistance of extension agents.

RADIOGRAMS

Flashed in Lake Villa

Mr. Paul Avery attended a dance at Lake Villa Saturday night, and at 2:30 Sunday morning he was reported to arrived in San Francisco via radio.

Talking about dancing and radio, we have heard that a couple of well-known gentlemen in Lake Villa, the Postmaster and the official representative of the Zooline, made merry at the Radioshop last Friday. The music was furnished by the Drake Hotel (Chicago) jazz orchestra.

It is reported that Mr. Wagner has found a sensitive spot on his crystal and got Schenectady, N. Y., and St. Louis, Mo.

Mr. Lee Sherwood purchased an automobile last Friday. Mr. Sherwood, do you keep the cutout open or what's the noise?

What Will They Do for You?

If you buy a new suit, or some hardware, or groceries from an out-of-town dealer or the mail-order man, do you think those merchants will help pave the streets of Lake Villa; or contribute money towards making your town a better place in which to live? You know that they will not. And you know that the money you give them can never be used for the benefit of yourself and your home. But you do know that money spent in Lake Villa remains in Lake Villa and is used for our own good. The merchants of Lake Villa are here as a vital part and factor in the development of this place.

Best Circulation in Own Community

Spending Money Away from Home Town Does Not Benefit Merchants

Some men and women spend their money away from home because they think they are putting it "into circulation."

They are sincere in their belief that they are serving a real economic purpose by taking the trolley or the train periodically and buying the things they need in some metropolis of the state. An eloquent stranger from the city in question has explained the matter to them in great detail and perhaps with some logic.

Or they have read the printed arguments sent out by a big divided paying mail-order house in a distant part of the country.

In either case, the advice never comes from any fellow townsman of theirs who has the interests of the home town at heart.

That is a point to be remembered.

Put Coin into Motion.

It is true that such buyers, by carrying their money out of town in person, or sending it out by money-order, are putting their money into motion. That is one step in the process of circulation as it is known by economists and business men. The dictionary says in defining circulation: "Motion around or through something, back to the starting point."

Nothing comes back in the kind of "circulation" they are trying to put under way. Value received would come back to the community, if it were the right kind of circulation. That is the theory of all sound business. Nothing must be lost in the cycle, whether the return is in money or in kind.

The money, or the purchasing power, that is in a small community is like the reservoir of water that is stored up behind a dam. The big-city market is the lowland into which the river drains when the sluice-gates are lifted every time some member of the community carries his money away, the water level is lowered, and the power that should grind the corn is lost.

Old Saying Truthful.

And it is as true here as in the old saying, that "The mill will never grind with the water that has passed."

We are getting into theory here, but it is the theory on which all sound business life is based, and our readers must be set straight on this point if the big campaign of community education which is being carried on Antioch is to succeed.

There can be no true circulation under the circumstances any more than water can flow up-hill.

Why?

Because there is nothing in the smaller community to attract the necessary return current.

Let us put the case concretely: You earn your money in Antioch. It is the heart-blood of the community's life. Instead of buying what you need at the Antioch stores, so as to keep the money in circulation at home, and thus helping to maintain a healthy business life, you drain these industrial corporations out of the system. Every such drain weakens it.

And you pay more than you pay at home for the same merchandise, as we will prove to subsequently in this weekly series of educational articles.

Nothing Comes Back.

Now, the money it out. What comes back from this expenditure made in the distant big city by your Antioch money?

Nothing—absolutely nothing.

Your vaunted "circulation" is a myth. The big city is self-sufficing. Antioch has nothing, makes nothing and raises nothing that the metropolitan neighbor must have. Antioch cannot supply anything that hundreds of other places of similar size cannot supply. Antioch shoppers—in person or by mail—are cultivated so long as their money holds out; after that they are no longer wanted.

Does Your Money Come Back?

When you spend your money out of town, when you patronize stores in other cities, or buy from mail order houses, your money never comes back. Money spent outside of Antioch will never be used for the betterment of your home town. Money spent in Antioch stays here—it circulates here—it is used for you. The profits of the merchants of Antioch are spent here. Are you sending your money away where it—or the good it may do—will never come back? Keep your money where it will work for you.
